

The Indianapolis 500 is one of the fastest and oldest races in history. You should witness this yourself! You should also go to the IPL 500 Festival Parade while you're there. You will experience senses that will knock your socks off at the parade and race!

The IPL 500 Festival Parade is very exciting. There are all kinds of things you can hear, see, and feel. You can hear the marching of the people at the parade, the people clapping to show their enjoyment, instruments from the Purdue band, and the honking from the pace cars. You can see the motorcycles riding in circles, cars pulling colorful floats, IU and Purdue cheerleaders, the marching military, and the baton twirlers. While watching the parade you can feel the warm sun. Those are the exciting things at the IPL 500 Festival Parade.

The Indy 500 race is very fast. They go up to almost 240 miles an hour. Here are things you can see, hear, feel, taste and smell. You can see and hear thousands of people getting ready to watch the race, the air force planes fly across the sky while a famous person sings the national anthem, around 30 colorful cars racing around a 2 and a half mile oval track. Also you can hear the announcer telling you what is happening and the car engines. Furthermore, you can feel the sun on your face, the breeze from the fast cars going by, and the heat from the car engines. Moreover, you can taste the food you bring, tea, hamburgers, hotdogs, any beverages, and about all the things at the concession stand. You can smell the car engines and gas.

Those are all the exciting experiences at the famous parade and race. Now you know that you should be there!