Dear family,

I've heard that you are going to Indy for Memorial Day weekend. Did you know that the 104th Indy 500 is going on there? You really should go there and to the parade. It's one of the best races ever! It's even nicknamed "Greatest Spectacle in Racing" and has been going on since 1911!

The day before the race is the parade. The exciting theme this year is "Start Your Engines!" and most of the floats will be designed to go with the theme. Also you will see many celebrities! The parade is actually the 3rd largest in the country!

When you go to the race [the day after the parade] the first thing you should do, is try to park in the infield where all the excitement is! There are so many fun and cool things to see and do there. Before the race starts you will see famous people singing the National Anthem and there will also be balloons and fighter planes flying over you! Next you can see the race start where all of the cars zoom around the track! The race is so popular that about 300,000 spectators go there every year!

Think you'll get bored? No problem! There are many fun things to do there! You can play a lot of fun games that you can earn cool prizes for playing! There is also a car museum and concert you can visit! You can also go on a really cool bridge that takes you over the track! Also if you get hungry there are hot dogs and drinks.

So, are you persuaded? You should go there yourself! Check it out and see what I mean! It will be a wonderful experience for your family.

Sincerely,
Fourth grader
