Dear Family,

I think you should go to the Indy 500, also known as the "Greatest Spectacle in Racing." If your family wants to go to the Indy 500 then you should know, it is on Memorial Day Weekend. You are going to see a lot of cool cars along with thousands of people! You are going to hear people yelling and cheering, cars starting and racing by, and the stomping from fans in the bleachers. You will feel really excited that you get the opportunity to go to the Indy 500. You will taste the food that is there. You will smell the gas and rubber burning.

If you have kids that like race cars then definitely bring them with you! Any children that enjoy princesses will enjoy the princess program that goes along with the race. They will have fun seeing the princesses. Have you heard of the many Indy 500 traditions? Louis Meyer started the famous tradition of drinking the milk. More awesome traditions are: Climbing the Fence, Kissing the Bricks, and Winner's Wreath. You will also hear the song "Back Home Again in Indiana" with colorful balloons being released on the final note. Who doesn't love balloons? There will be 33 drivers there and also marching bands. Celebrities come to the Indy 500. The theme for this year is "Start your Engines". The parade is the 3rd largest parade in the world. The parade floats take a long time to build. They have perfect detail done on them.

If you go to the Indy 500 then you are going to have a blast! Anyone, all ages, will enjoy it! There are so many fun things there that you can do, and you will never get bored at the Indy 500.

Sincerely,
4th Grader
